I have to go to Africa, to believe it!

If you can't go see the animals in the bush, animals will come to you!

Our Story

Dear Family,

When you book with us, you cease being a customer and become part of our family and so allow us to address you as family.

Wemar Safaris is a tour company started by two brothers in 2019, who, during the 10Th anniversary since our dad passed on in 2009, decided to honour him by starting a company named after him. Even though the name is corrupted from Wemah to Wemar, it hasn't lost its meaning to the family.

We hope to have a positive societal impact which our dad envisaged by his philanthropic deeds. And that is why the two brothers pictured Paul in shades and Erasmos and the entire family owned and operated company, would like to treat you to the African kindness.

Therefore, with this brochure, we hope you will consider joining us at home in East Africa to a tour that will exceed your wildest expectations!

Sincerely,

Paul

The Great Annual Migration

Experience has taught us that, the Great Migration tops every list of East Africa safari visitor. Some call it the spectacle; others, the seventh new world wonder, the Annual Wildebeest Migration, and we, at Wemar Safaris call it the Annual Wildebeest Ritual! Whatever the name, the Great Annual Wildebeest Migration is inspiring site that you cannot afford to miss that happens yearly. The largest and longest overland migration in the world, nowhere has there been such a large movement of wild animals other than Kenya and Tanzania. One of the must do list when visiting East Africa!

The show is anchored on Mara and Serengeti Ecosystem. What this means is that, the wildebeests do not require visa nor passport to access the two for their movement is never restricted. With a landmass of 40,000km², 1.8million wildebeest, over 400,000 Thompson gazelles, 30,000 zebras and antelopes and hundreds of predators setting out on a long trek from Tanzania Parks to Kenya's Maasai Mara in search of greener pastures and water. It's a cycle that never ends and repeats every year. However, their migration is never complete without some misfortunes befalling them. In fact, a spectacular sight is when they have to cross the Grumeti River in northern Serengeti and the crocodile infested Mara River. As predators such as lions, leopards, cheetahs and hyenas accompany them to capitalize on the weak and the young, crocodiles lie in wait with anticipation for the big kill for those who can't cope with the strong water currents.

The Migration Cycle

JAN – MAR: Animals converge at Ndotu region because of the short green grass and water in Lake Ndotu as they move towards Ngorongoro Conservation Area. This is the calving season and females drop their young ones mostly in the third week of arrival due to assurance of security of short grass without the fear of predators lurking in taller grass.

Approximately half a million calves are born during this season.

Where to stay: Ndotu Safari Lodge, Lemala Ndotu Camp, Kusini Camp.

APR –JUNE: The long rains have started, and the rivers are swelling and most of the grass in the southern parts of Serengeti is gone, the wildebeests start moving northwards of Serengeti and individual groups begin to congregate and form much larger herds in readiness for the long trek.

Where to stay: Grumeti River Camp, Migration Camp, Serengeti Serena, Kirawira Camp, Moru & Seronera Campsites.

JULY: The animals have dispensed with the first three hurdles, and now, they must overcome the last one: the crocodile infested Mara River which is a converging point is by this time also flooded and drowning is a very big possibility. It's the best time.

Where to stay: Mara Serena Safari Lodge, Sayari Camp, Kichwa Tembo, Bataleur Camps.

AUG – OCT: The Mara is full and overflowing with large herds of wildebeest together with the predators.

Where to stay: Governors Camp, Mara Intrepids Camp, Sarova Mara Tented Camp, Mara Serena Safari lodge.

NOV – DEC: The short rains have started and our visitors, the wildebeests begin to move to the now lush grasses in Ndotu and Selei plains in Serengeti, crossing the Mara and Grumeti Rivers once again back to Tanzania as the cycle begins all over again.

Where to stay: Klein's Camp.

Great Wildebeest Migration Facts

1. It's estimated that about $\frac{1}{4}$ million wildebeests die during migration from Serengeti to Mara and back mainly due to exhaustion or predation otherwise, their population would have spiraled out of control and exerted pressure on the ecosystem bringing about human/wildlife conflict.
2. Wildebeest have a gestation period of 8-9 months.
3. Wildebeest are also called Gnu because of the sound they produce during migration, "gnu", "gnu".
4. $\frac{1}{2}$ million calves are born during the February and March and the newborns can be running after just 3 minutes.

KICC has an amphitheater with a capacity of 800 and a plenary hall that can accommodate 4,000 people and conference halls of different sizes ideal for business meetings and security is perfect, with a police station at the basement of the building.

Balloon Safaris in Kenya & Tanzania

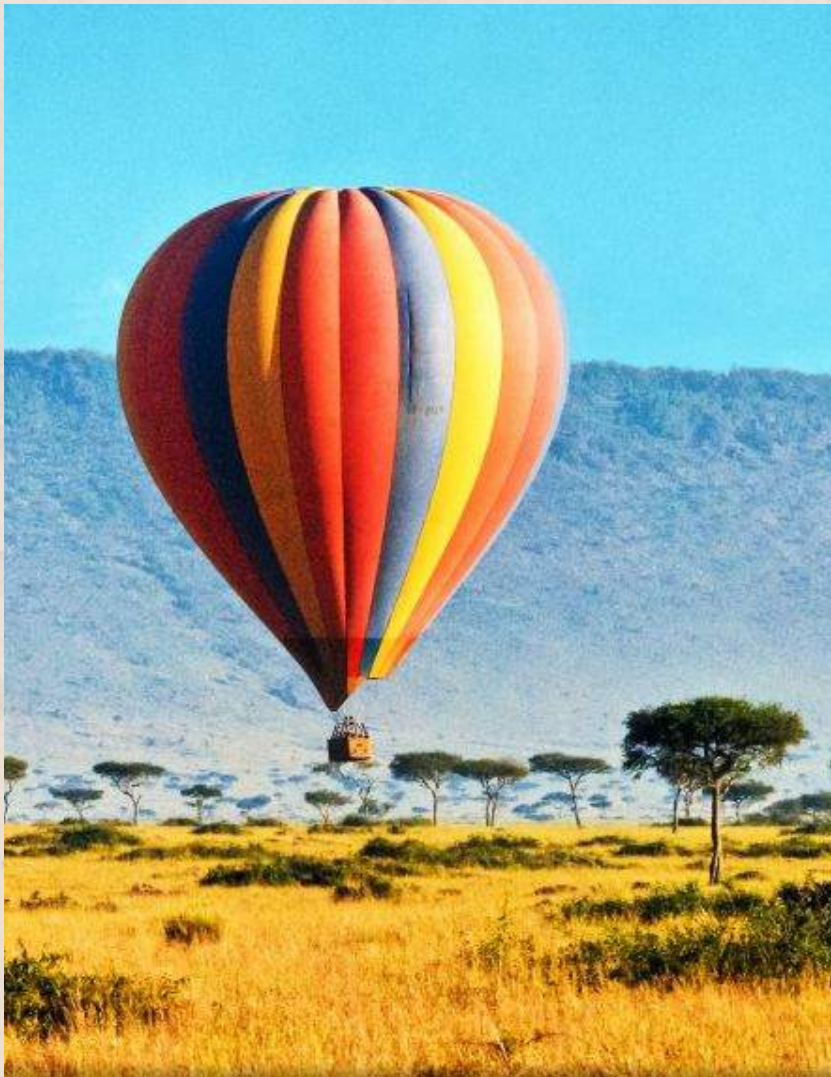

Balloon Safaris are the most evocative and romantic way of seeing the wilderness of Africa, as you silently and gracefully fly over the plains crowded with herds or group of wild life in the beautiful early morning. Typically, a Balloon Safari begins at around 6 in the morning and lasts for about one hour. During this period you will likely see the magnificent wildlife below and over several square kilometers of the best game parks in Africa.

Balloon Safari in Mara

In the morning of your Balloon Safari trip, the Safari vehicle will pick you from your camp or lodge as early as 5.a.m. to drive you to the site arriving at around 6.a.m. Here, you have a chance to watch the pilots preparing the Balloons for a take-off while enjoying your cup of traditional Kenyan fresh tea or coffee. The Masai Mara lodge breakfast is set up on poetic savannah plains of the Mara, mostly under a single acacia tree shade. You will be served with waiters/ waitresses in traditional Kenyan attires with a breakfast complete with eggs to order, fresh juices, coffee, and champagne name them. Masai Mara Balloon Safari gives a lifetime experience that you will forever live to cherish.

Balloon Safari in Amboseli

The gentle movement of wind across the myriad of pinks, purples and oranges lighting up the Amboseli sky as you watch a wonderful 'African sunrise' makes Amboseli Hot Air Ballooning the most romantic way to fly.

The most beautiful site of Mount Kilimanjaro above the herds of elephant crossing the plains of Amboseli is a magnificent image of African and one of the most memorable experiences in life. The hot air Balloon Safaris in Amboseli allows you to spot buffalo, giraffes or zebra roaming the Park happily, if you are lucky enough you can even see a lion, the king of the jungle, enjoying an early morning kill.

Balloon Safari in Serengeti

Serengeti is the only place which holds Balloon Safaris regularly and they take off in the Seronera area where there is no animal disturbance. The Safari vehicle will drop you off at the take off site and pick you up from the landing site.

At the Serengeti launch site you will meet your pilot who will give you instructions and precautions to take during the Balloon Safari flight.

The pilot increases more heat into the Balloon from time to time using the powerful whisper burners.

After landing you can celebrate with a Champaign before sitting down to an English breakfast which will be served in the bush.

When & Where To Go On An African Safari

When to go on a safari sometimes depends on when you can actually take a vacation. If you're looking for the best safari experience and don't mind what country to go to, then this is the right guide just for you. It's a month by month blow account of the best animal viewing opportunities in Africa.

January

January is prime safari time in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. The weather is usually dry and the animals will congregate in dense numbers around permanent water supplies.

The migrating wildebeest can be found in northern parks of Tanzania during this time of year especially in the southern Ndutu and Salei plains.

February

February is one of the best months to go on safari in Tanzania because thousands of wildebeest are usually born around this time. Most of the wildebeest give birth within the same three week period. If you like seeing young animals, Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda are all perfect this time of year.

March

Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda are still in dry season and the density and diversity of animals can't be matched elsewhere this month.

April

It's a good month for those looking for discounted safaris because the rains usually start in East Africa. Rains bring plentiful water and the animals tend to disperse making them harder to find while on safari. Vegetation begins to get very lush which can obstruct your views of the animals. It's an ideal safari in Tanzania without the crowds, especially in the northern parks. Southern Africa is coming in to its own, in April with cooler, drier weather and Botswana and Namibia are good places for April.

May

The best country to go on safari is probably Zambia. Zambia offers a truly wild African safari and there aren't too many months when the parks can operate at full tilt, so you have to take advantage of it while it lasts.

If you have your heart set on an East African safari, you'll still see a lot of animals, especially in Tanzania even though it's leafy. Make sure the camps and lodges you wish to go to are open. You should be able to get some nice discounts.

June

Southern Africa countries are heading into their best safari period by June. South Africa, Botswana, Zambia, Zimbabwe and Namibia enjoy their high season this time of year. Be prepared for some chilly nights and bring a jacket for the early morning drives and walks.

July - September

Every major safari destination is primed for business in East Africa. Kenya's Masai Mara lays out the green carpet for millions of migrating wildebeest and a welcoming red carpet for tourists. This is the time for those spectacular river crossings with the crocodiles lying in wait for feeble wildebeest to stumble into their salivating jaws.

Parks can get crowded and booked up well in advance and so if you're looking for a budget safari, try a different season because this, is the season of the seventh world wonder- The Great Wildebeest Migration!

October

Kenya and Tanzania are the best places for a safari in October. The small rainy season has usually not arrived yet and the dry months make game viewing very rewarding.

November

Tanzania's northern parks are the best places to go on safari in November, as the migrating herds make their way back to Serengeti.

If you're a fan of birds, Botswana's Okavango Delta begins to fill up with migrating birds, starting their breeding season that lasts until March.

December

East Africa reigns once more as the best safari destination and if you'd like to spend Christmas in the bush, then Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda enjoy some dry weather and excellent game viewing.
